Types and Materials

- Ladder-style trays: Provide strong support for heavy cables and are ideal for long spans.
- Perforated trays: Offer better heat dissipation and dust protection, suitable for control and communication cables.

- Channel-style trays: Often used for lighter loads or specific routing requirements. Surface treatments include hot-dip galvanization for corrosion resistance, and powder coating for additional durability in harsh environments .

- MRC Wire Products Ltd: Offers welded and customizable cable trays with high load-bearing capacity and quick installation options .
- Brikonek: Supplies HDG perforated trays widely used in industrial, commercial, and infrastructure projects .
