Key Takeaways

German cable mesh trays typically range from €20 to €150 per tray depending on size, material, and manufacturer. Overview of Pricing

The cost of cable mesh trays in Germany varies widely based on material, dimensions, load capacity, and brand. For example:

- Small under-desk trays made of powder-coated steel for office use generally cost €20–€50 per unit, suitable for organizing cables under desks without drilling .
- Industrial-grade steel or galvanised mesh trays designed for heavy-duty applications in construction, manufacturing, or data centers can range from €50–€150 or more per meter, depending on width, height, and load-bearing capacity .
- Aluminium alloy trays are often more expensive due to lightweight and corrosion-resistant properties, with prices typically starting around €60–€120 per meter .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material: Galvanised steel is durable and cost-effective, while aluminium alloys are lighter and corrosion-resistant but pricier.
- Size and Load Capacity: Wider and taller trays that support heavier cables cost more.

- Finish and Coating: Powder-coated or corrosion-resistant finishes increase durability and price.
 - Installation Features: Trays with self-coupling systems or no-drill mounting options may have higher upfront costs but reduce installation time .
 - Supplier and Brand: Established German manufacturers like Jeetmull Jaichandlall, Valdinox, and Eurotray offer premium quality, which can affect pricing .
- Purchasing Tips
- Compare suppliers: Prices vary between wholesalers and online retailers.
 - Consider bulk orders: Industrial projects often reduce per-unit cost when buying in larger quantities.
 - Check for customization: Some manufacturers offer custom sizes or finishes, which may increase cost but improve fit and longevity.
 - Factor in installation: Some trays include clamps or self-coupling systems that reduce labor costs. In summary, expect to pay €20–€50 for small office trays and €50–€150+ per meter for industrial German cable mesh trays, with final pricing influenced by material, size, and installation features .
