Key Takeaways

Cable trays with interlayers typically range from £20 to £150 per meter depending on material, load capacity, and finish. Pricing Overview

The cost of cable trays depends on several factors including material type (steel, aluminum, or wire mesh), duty rating (light, medium, heavy), length, width, and protective coatings such as pre-galvanized or hot-dipped galvanization . For standard ladder-type hot-dip galvanized trays, prices are often calculated per standard length of 2.4 meters, with fittings and accessories priced per piece . Wire mesh or basket trays, which are lighter and easier to install, tend to be more affordable than solid steel trays .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material and Finish: Steel trays are generally less expensive than aluminum, but aluminum is lighter and easier to handle, reducing shipping and labor costs . Hot-dipped galvanization adds corrosion resistance and increases durability, slightly raising the price .
- Duty Rating: Light-duty trays are cheaper, while medium and heavy-duty trays designed for high load capacities cost more .

- Interlayer Feature: Trays with interlayers, which provide additional separation or insulation between cables, may increase the cost by 10–30% depending on the design and material used.
 - Accessories: Couplers, bends, tees, and lids are sold separately and can add to the overall project cost .
- Typical Price Ranges
- Light-duty wire mesh trays: £20–£40 per meter
 - Medium-duty steel trays with interlayer: £50–£90 per meter
 - Heavy-duty steel trays with interlayer: £100–£150 per meter

Cost Considerations

Using cable trays instead of conduit can save 40–60% of total installation costs due to faster installation and easier cable management . The interlayer feature may slightly increase upfront costs but can improve cable organization, reduce heat buildup, and extend the lifespan of the installation, offering long-term savings . For precise pricing, it is recommended to contact suppliers directly with specifications such as tray width, length, load capacity, and interlayer requirements, as prices vary by manufacturer and project scale .
